

It is vital that the FCC continue to limit media ownership. An informed public needs to have a variety of sources providing coverage on issues. From local to international interests, the people will best be served if the media remains a competitive market.